We cannot receive anonymous communications. In all cases we require the writer's name and address, not for publication, but a guarantee of good faith.

We cannot, under any circumstances, return rejected communications, nor can we undertake to preserve manuscripts.

DISTRICT CONVENTION.

A Convention of the Democratic-Conservative voters of the Fourth Congressional District will be held in the city of Raleigh on Tuesday the 13th day of June next, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Congress and a Presidential Elector, and selecting two delegates to the St. Louis Convention. A full attendance is earnestly desired. Each county will be entitled to one vote for every one hundred votes and fractional part over fifty given for Merriam in 1872.

By order of the District Executive Committee.

H. A. LONDON, JR.,

March 31st, 1876.

Papers in the District will please copy.

THE Peet Dee Herald renominates Hon. Thos. S. Ashe for Congress.

The Charlotte Observer says Hon. Zeb. B. Vance will undoubtedly get the nomination. Don't be in a hurry, gentlemen. Give the conventions a chance. We are all interested in the choice.

GENERAL Matt Ransom has declined the invitation to deliver the address before the Ladies' Memorial Association on the 10th of May. But Morton will be there to deliver the address on the occasion of the decoration of the Federal graves. Too late, Mr. Morton.

THE National Republican unwittingly convicts its party. It says "the press detectives are all Democrats." When the country sees the immense amount of corruption exposed in the Radical party and which Radical detectives failed to make known, it will thank God that these detectives were "Democrats."

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

We are indebted to the Hon. Thos. Bayard for a copy of his speech delivered in the Senate March 30th, "Pleas for Peace," etc.; and also for the speeches of Messrs. Withers of Va., Maxey of Texas, and Boutwell of Massachusetts on the same occasion.

Also to Mr. James Throckmorton of Texas, for the speeches of Messrs. Woodburn of Nevada, and Williams of Alabama on the Texas Pacific Railroad, and that of Mr. W. A. Piper of California on the "Impolicy of Government Subsidies to Rail Roads."

THE New York Sun thinks that Hayes will be the probable Republican candidate for the Presidency. It says "he has been a respectable Governor and a clean handed representative in Congress. He defeated Gov. Allen last year, and modestly wears the laurels of victory. His war record, like himself, is fair and creditable, without being in any way brilliant. On all the living issues, he is conservative, and not open to any exception as an extremist." The opinion of the Sun accords very nearly with what we have expressed. Without being at all interested in the subject, we think Republican opinion is more strongly fixed upon Hayes than any other. It may finally centre upon Bristow, but sentiment will be slow to crystallize upon one so new to Presidential aspiration, and one who has given such a deadly blow to Republican practices. Recentment has not yet quite yielded to policy, and if Bristow is nominated, it will be because he will carry the new party colors of honesty and reform, the only colors that will win in the coming campaign.

THE National Republican says "if Grant is guilty as charged, i. e. making illegal use of the secret service fund the Treasury Department in 1871-2-3, he should be impeached at once." If proven guilty, and impeached, will the Republican stand in its position or eat its words? Remember that the accuser is Ex-Ambassador General Williams, a long-trusted member of Grant's Cabinet, and not the "Confederate House of Representatives," as the Republican delights to call it.

THE PRESIDENT ON THE DEFENSIVE.

While the Democratic party has been free to charge any amount and degree of corruption upon this Republican administration, and while the rapid unveiling of facts under the searching process of Congressional investigation proves that the charges were absolutely true, yet the Democrats have been slow to charge the President himself with personal participation in transactions infamous and dishonest. True, the conduct of the President has been severely criticised for his indifference and varied means by which he has become rich. True, he has been unparagoned censured for his association with men of more than doubtful character. True, he has been condemned for his open interposition to protect those men from the consequences of proven guilt. But charity interposed to spare him personally. He might be imposed upon. He might be ignorant. He might be careless. But no party was willing to say openly that the President of the United States, however regardless he might be of constitutional restraints in carrying through his political views, was base enough to use the money of the people for his own aggrandizement. It remains for a former member of his Cabinet, and the most confidential instrument of some of his most offensive measures, to make charges which a Democrat would not openly have uttered, because then a Democrat would not have been listened to. Attorney General Williams charges that he paid over to one Davenport, an emissary of the secret service fund, $30,000 by the direct order of the President, to be used in New York for electioneering purposes. The President denies most emphatically the charges and calls for a Cabinet meeting to resolve upon his course of action.

But the great fact is admitted at last that immense sums were used for electioneering purposes, and that large portions of that sum were drawn from the public treasury. Granting that the President was imposed upon, and that he supposed money so drawn was legitimately applied, the great fact stands that they were drawn out and used to corrupt the ballot and secure the success of the Republican party. We had reason to suspect that the President was used in North Carolina to carry the State first for Caldwell, then for Grant. It was hardly a matter of conjecture. It was a patent fact openly boasted of. Pennsylvania was carried in the same campaign by the lavish use of money. The Democrats felt themselves powerless before such machinery. The resources of the Republicans were exhausted when they had the National Treasury opened without stint, to fall back upon. No wonder they have always been so confident of carrying the election. Now the Democrats, if they have not the keys of the treasury, at least can direct the application of its contents. They have seen how they have been used. They will see they are not again abused.

RAILROAD FREIGHTS—AGAIN.

Subsequent to the writing of our article yesterday on this subject we received a communication from a gentleman from Chatham which we published in our local columns. It only went to confirm the idea that the interest of the subject was general and that the public mind was becoming roused to its importance.

Hostility to railroads does not enter into the question. He would be a narrow-minded bigot indeed who from personal grievances, or disappointment at the full fruition of his expectations, would denounce and destroy the most potent engine of modern civilization. Steam and the iron highway have done in a generation what the tardy work of unaided human muscle had not been able to do in its contest with nature in the last two hundred years. It has with the memory of this generation linked together the remotest parts of the country; it has united the opposite sides of the continent; it has thrown its ramifications throughout the land, and figuratively has brought the most appropriate methods of travel and transportation to every man's door. So far the calculations based upon the application of steam to the highway have been verified. It remains to be seen why others have been falsified.

As we said yesterday, so long as the railroads in this State were owned in the State, they were the subjects of control, or they might be sensible to appeal. Their rates might be controlled by the Legislature, or a just knowledge of their own interests as dependent upon those of the people make concessions when complaint was loud. Now, under foreign control, the latter influences no longer prevail, and it remains to be seen what powers exist in the Legislature to regulate the internal management of foreign corporations, working to some extent under foreign charters. If the Legislature can exact a parity between local and through freights, if it can abolish discriminations which give decided advantage to the more distant points, if it can restore equality to local traffic, then the victory will have been gained. The potent influence of opposition will make exorbitant rates for through freights impossible, and the recognition of local equality will secure to local freights the desired reduction.

A grievance must be a heavy one which compels a people to take backward steps in the important item of transportation, and indignation must be fierce indeed which brings the miserable dirt roads of North Carolina again in competition with the smooth running, rapid flying trains upon the iron highway. Both have been done, and wagon trains compete at several important points with those of the several railroads. Do not the railroad companies see that they are pursuing a course most ruinous, impolitic and damaging to their own interests? They are driving off freight which would come naturally and inevitably to them if not repelled by exorbitant charges. They are diminishing production because they close the outlet to any increase of production. They are destroying their own revenues by the practical drying up of its source. They are straggling all future enterprise, because they make odious that which, pre-empted as a benefactor, proves to be an enemy and a tyrant.

This movement in the direction of lower freights and equal justice has been set on foot not to stop until it gains its object. The people of North Carolina are slow to move, but when set in motion, move with terrible momentum. Railroad companies may ponder upon this. They may feel themselves entrenched in power and privilege, and able to disregard popular complaint. They must yield at last, or they will continue to exist under a load of odium which must tell on their interests.

There is another subject in this connection which deserves notice, because in it is comprised one of the greatest annoyances to which shippers are subjected. These foreign corporations are latter rivals among each other. They have discarded all comity, and work independent of each other. They refuse to pro-rate, they refuse to collect for each other, and they heap upon the mercantile community vexations and burdens which add heavily to the already overburdened weight of grievances. These, with the exception of pro-rating, are private matters which must work their own cure. Perhaps public opinion or the loss of business will effect it. But in regard to pro-rating, this is an interest which we think it competent for the Legislature to regulate.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 20, 1876.

GRANT AND BABCOCK. It has been frequently asserted that Grant never goes back to his friends; and yet it was stated a few days ago, that he had requested Secretary Bristow to discharge a dozen or more clerks appointed to positions in the Treasury Department on the recommendation of Babcock. The story was only a rumor, but the President himself is authority for the statement that he has never made any such request. In point of fact, he is scarcely the man to do anything of the kind. No matter how damning may be the proof of misconduct, or crime itself, on the part of his favorites, he makes it a matter of principle not to investigate, or if through circumstances he is susceptible of proof that, to-day, notwithstanding statements to the contrary, Boss Shepherd and General Babcock have been in the same campaign by the lavish use of money. The Democrats felt themselves powerless before such machinery. The resources of the Republicans were exhausted when they had the National Treasury opened without stint, to fall back upon. No wonder they have always been so confident of carrying the election. Now the Democrats, if they have not the keys of the treasury, at least can direct the application of its contents. They have seen how they have been used. They will see they are not again abused.

WORLD BE PRESIDENT IN A BAD BOX.

"Blaine from Maine," the most hopeful of Republican Presidential aspirants, has received a blow from the recent developments in relation to his connection with the Union Pacific Railroad, the full force of which he has not yet felt. His friends earnestly urge him to resort to a Congressional investigation, and to prosecute for exonerating, protecting that his prospects as a Presidential candidate will be materially diminished unless he can convince the country that he is guiltless of the charges brought against him. Said he, to day, in answer to the question of a friend as to why he did not ask for a thorough investigation, if innocent, "I have a very good reason for not doing so. The Democrats would go to any length to destroy my political prospects, and I fear that if a House investigation committee was raised to investigate me, they would delay reporting until after the Cincinnati convention. Meanwhile, I would be a cloud, and my friends would be disappointed. I have no objection to the nomination of an. Eastern man, speaking the same language, with the requisite thickskin. It is no wonder that he will be investigated any way, as the charge against him is of too serious nature to be ignored by his political opponents. To say that Morton and Conkling would be rejoiced at the downfall of the gentleman from Maine but half expressed the truth, they would feel assured that he had withdrawn from the Presidential course.

THE ST. LOUIS NOMINATION.

A market change has occurred within the past ten days, in the tone and feeling of Western men here, and these who were positive in their assertion of preference for Fremont are now willing to accept whatever may be most necessary for the success of the party—even if it demand the nomination of an. Eastern man, speaking the same language, with the requisite thickskin. It is no wonder that he will be investigated any way, as the charge against him is of too serious nature to be ignored by his political opponents. To say that Morton and Conkling would be rejoiced at the downfall of the gentleman from Maine but half expressed the truth, they would feel assured that he had withdrawn from the Presidential course.

has added to his strength; and it is certain that he will be presented at St. Louis by a united delegation headed by such men as Horatio Seymour and Chas. O'Connor. Bayard is also very much talked of. Judge Davis is occasionally mentioned; but he is not likely to be in the field, if there really be what can be called a movement, has little real vitality as yet. The sentiment freely expressed in favor of the nomination of a life-long democrat, and of a man of republican antecedents and as far as known present proclivities in the same direction, operates strongly against him.

These made in a way of Judge Davis's nomination is the growing sentiment in opposition to anything like a repetition of the Greeley experiment. When Mr. Watterson of the Journal and Courier Journal declares that the party must this time nominate a life-long Democrat, and a man who can carry the Eastern States, that "West is last of the Democrats," and that our "only hope is the East, the Pacific States, and the South," he expresses that which is getting to be very general feeling. "Tilden is last of the Democrats," and says of him: "He is the representative of the old rule of theory or practice by which the South can get on its feet again. He is based on old line Jeffersonian Democracy, and strict constructionism." He is a New Yorker, and the fools think we can get along without New York. Tilden is certainly very strong, from two causes, his prestige as a reformer, and his popularity in New York; and without that state we have no hope. Speculations about a coalition are certainly only, but in a crisis like the present, the facts cannot afford to make any mistakes. What the people demand is a candidate whose past record is a guarantee of future fidelity. And that such a man will be nominated at St. Louis is the firm belief of your correspondent.

THE SAFE BURGLARY CONSPIRACY.

has been pretty thoroughly developed by the House Committee charged with investigating it, and it is to be hoped that, at the forthcoming trial the investigators of the disgraced Babcock and others, and their accomplices, may be fully exposed and punished to the full extent of the law, without fear, favor or affection. It is difficult to believe that any man of sense and courage, and every peaceful, respectable and law-abiding citizen must feel anxious to see the guilty punished, and the innocent set free. It must be confessed that much of the proof thus far comes from sources of a questionable character—from some whose antecedents and whose present circumstances are not of a quality calculated to give the strongest weight with an impartial jury. But, again, the indicted men, Babcock, Harrington et al., are not, themselves, of irreproachable character. The vexed question has been so long before the public, and has assumed so many different shapes, that any new development which may throw light upon the mystery, will be eagerly awaited. Too much has been said to permit it any longer to remain buried in darkness. Let all the facts be exposed to the full light of day, and let those who have a conscience and are having been parties criminales prepare for the day of reckoning which shall make an example of them to all evildoers.

An extraordinary story is told by the Paris Gaulois of a certain dentist who has just been consigned to the Mazas Prison in Paris on the charge of poisoning certain of his patients. He is stated to have induced them to pay him frequent visits, and under pretense of attending to their defective teeth, to have introduced small quantities of poison into their hollow molars. These specially-favored individuals are supposed to have been sent to him by their heirs or by other persons interested in their removal, and that the dentist, under the influence of avarice, and for the sake of a few dollars, was ready to sacrifice the lives of his patients. The first wife of the prisoner was now married a second time, and the dentist, under the influence of avarice, and for the sake of a few dollars, was ready to sacrifice the lives of his patients. The first wife of the prisoner was now married a second time, and the dentist, under the influence of avarice, and for the sake of a few dollars, was ready to sacrifice the lives of his patients.

MIDNIGHT DISPATCHES.

Washington Items.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Further hearing in the Killbuck case is continued to Monday.

Smithsonian Institution has announced a new planet discovered by Prof. Henry of Paris.

The Treasury Department has received from Paris three counterfeit United States gold dollar pieces—specimens of a lot of $16,000 worth received there from San Salvador. It is almost a perfect imitation.

The Committee on Foreign Affairs have agreed to report adversely on the resolution of Don Pedro. Davenport testimony goes to show that he commences his system of registration under the auspices of the Union League. He had spent ten thousand dollars and was impoverishing himself when he saw Grant at Long Branch, who said he would recommend the matter to Attorney-General.

Boutwell hopes to leave with his committee by the middle of next week, if the House concurs in the appropriation for his expenses.

Commodore R. F. Lewis has been ordered on special duty to the Norfolk Navy Yard.

Capt. Wm. K. King, of the Engineer Corps, relieves Major Walter McFarland at Chattanooga.

Destructive Fire.

PITTSBURG, April 22.—The Methodist camp meeting grounds at Tarentum, Penn., were destroyed by the last night. The Tarentum grounds have been owned by the Methodists of the vicinity for many years, and the cottages belonged to the members of the church. The grounds probably contained 150 framed cottages, which were generally of 4 or 5 rooms, of neat architectural design, and were completely furnished, except with bed clothing. The only buildings saved, according to present advices, were the tenant house occupied by the superintendent and the camp kitchen. The loss is about $50,000.

Bank Statements.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Loans decrease 44 million; specie decrease 11 million; legal tenders increase 21 million; deposits decrease 21 million; reserve increase 11 millions.

Dreaming to Advantage.

A Nevada paper tells this story of an incident at Nevada City. "The wife of Mr. Scott, one of the owners of the Last Chance Mine, had a dream on the night previous that her husband was killed by having his head struck by a rock in the mine, and when a signal was given that a blast was to be fired, he and Mr. Foote, both of whom were holding a hydraulic mine, retreated a distance of 250 feet. But for some reason Scott became uneasy and tried to get Foote to go still further away, concealing himself behind a tree instead of standing beside Foote as usual. When the blast went off a flying stone struck Foote on the head, killing him instantly. Mr. Scott is firmly convinced that if he had not remembered his wife's dream, he got behind the tree he would have been the man killed."

VARIETIES.

A student named Belk at Rutherford College died while returning from fishing.

At a colored funeral in Wilmington the horse ran away with the hearse and smashed it to atoms just after the corpse had been taken out.

A negro in Richmond becoming enraged at a broken down horse he was driving for heat put kerosene oil on its head and set it afire burning out the animal's eyes.

A son of the Rev. Jacob Henry Smith fills the pulpit for his father in the Presbyterian church at Greensboro this morning. Dr. Smith is absent attending Presbytery.

The Milton Chronicle tells of a man once known in that section as jumping John Miller who could jump over the back of a horse or leap over a covered wagon. Father Evans must give this item with reference to leap year or possibly a jumping match was going on in the street.

A tramp from Virginia leading his little girl by the hand passed through Caldwell county the other day. And yet he is such a riddle who knows but that little girl may twenty years hence be able to ride in a fine carriage over every mile of ground her little feet have trodden. Fortune favors those that wear the yoke in youth.

Tobacco manufacturers in Danville are anxious about the crop. The Danville Express says: Col. Geo. Williamson Senator from Caswell, Orange and Person counties, N. C., is at the Arlington, Col. W. refused to answer the numerous enquiries as to the scarcity or abundance of tobacco plants, but hired a bright fellow to go down to go around with him and answer the question.

Improvement of the Dan river. Richmond Dispatch: Congressman Cabell writes to the Halifax Record that "the river and harbor bill which has just passed the House and will be at the Arlington, Col. W. refused to answer the numerous enquiries as to the scarcity or abundance of tobacco plants, but hired a bright fellow to go down to go around with him and answer the question."
